WHAT IS TRADING?

Trading refers to the buying and selling of financial assets in markets to make a profit. It involves analysing market trends and identifying opportunities to enter the market, thereby making a profit. These instruments include various assets with values that can rise or fall. In the financial market, investors buy and sell shares of different companies. With online platforms such as Markets Remedy, markets have become more accessible, allowing more people to participate in investing and trading.

HOW DOES TRADING WORK?

Investment firms, financial professionals, and regular people all engage in trading. Their overarching goal is to buy financial asset at a low price and later sell it at a higher price.

When you want to buy and sell assets, you can opt to use the services of a financial advisor or handle it on your own via an online brokerage such as Markets Remedy. No matter who places an order, trades on a financial assets exchange are handled electronically.

AMONG THE TYPES OF TRADING IN THE FINANCIAL MARKETS ARE:

01 Day Trading

Day traders aggressively buy and sell assets over the course of a single day, with the intent of reaping gains from short-term price changes. As you might imagine, day trading carries a lot of risk.

02 Swing Trading

In swing trading, a trader usually purchases a stock and holds it for several days or a week to capitalise on the short-term stock patterns & trends.

These traders must have adequate knowledge of stock trends and patterns to execute their trades successfully.

03 Scalping

Also known as micro trading, scalping is a subset of intraday trading that focuses on making numerous small profits from rapid trades. Traders buy and sell stocks within a very short timeframe, sometimes within minutes, executing dozens or even hundreds of trades in a single day.

04 Momentum trading

Momentum trading focuses on capitalising on significant price movements, either upwards or downwards. Traders look for stocks that are breaking out or expected to experience a sharp price shift. In an upward momentum scenario, traders sell their holdings at a higher price, while in a downward trend, they purchase stocks to sell later at a higher value. This strategy relies on market timing and trend analysis to maximise returns.

05 Position trading

Position trading is a long-term trading strategy that involves buying an investment with the expectation that it will appreciate over time. Position traders are less concerned with short-term fluctuations in price and news of the day unless they alter the trader's long-term view of the position. They hold their positions for an extended period, typically weeks, or months, to achieve profit from the price movements of an asset.

Difference between trading and investing

Investment vs Trading

Investment	Trading
Long-term wealth growth	Short-term profit opportunities
Focus on fundamentals	Focus on market trends
Lower risk, steady returns	Higher risk, higher rewards
Timeframe: Days to Months	Timeframe: Minutes to days

In a nutshell, trading is a form of investing that prioritizes short-term profits over long-term gains.

At Markets Remedy, we know that the financial markets can feel overwhelming—cryptos, stocks, forex, futures, options—the list never ends. That’s why we’ve built a platform that takes the complexity out of investing and puts powerful tools right at your fingertips.

At Markets Remedy, we believe investing should be simple, smart, and stress-free. That’s why we’ve built automated investment features designed for anyone—whether you’re just starting out or already experienced in the markets.

Because time is money. Our technology does the heavy lifting, so you can focus on what matters most—your life, your goals, your future.

Market moves fast. $10,000 → $1M happens here. But so does $100K → $10K.

The difference between the two? One trader guesses. The other trades with Markets Remedy.

In financial markets trading, you bet if the price will be higher or lower after a certain time passes: the expiration. If you’re right, you win. If you’re wrong, you lose. When you lose, you lose the amount you’ve bet in the trade. When you win, you win around 80% of the amount you’ve bet (this depends on the broker as well).

Let’s say you believe the price of the USD/EUR will be higher in one minute and you bet $10,000. If you’re correct, you’ll profit around $8,000, depending on the broker. If you’re wrong, you lose your $10,000.

Crypto or Stocks?

Choosing the right investment starts with knowing your style.

Crypto

Crypto fits bold risk-takers who want high potential profits — but must be ready for fast swings.

Stocks

Stocks are great for those who value stability, long-term growth, and predictable returns.

Conclusion:

- Choose crypto for higher risk/reward and innovation.
- Choose stocks for long-term, stable growth.
- Many investors diversify and use both.
